

Force Mineur

Things like frequent rain, minor changes in feedstock characteristics, economic shifts, and even supplier delays may not result in changes in your construction costs, but may lead to start-up delays, increased carrying costs, and other disruptions that have a negative effect on your financial return. We also sometimes refer to this as 'Force Manure' - stuff happens. Although these conditions may be beyond your control, how you and your team respond can make all the difference. Cavanaugh will work with your team to ensure what can be done is done to keep your project on schedule, on budget, and performing to your expectations.